- I am proud to be on the Center For Siouxland Board because of its focus on empowering people to learn skills and secure resources associated with personal finances, budgeting, housing, and taxes that have the potential for lasting impact. It is certainly important for nonprofits to be able to immediately connect people to tangible resources in their moment of need, but Center For Siouxland does an excellent job of enhancing its work by providing education and understanding. Money management and maintaining a home are long-term commitments, and I appreciate that Center For Siouxland offers programming that reflects the long-term nature of those investments.
- Our family moved here from the Twin Cities in 2018 after I was recruited for my job at Morningside. I worked in the Minnesota State system for 13 years, which comprises 37 state colleges and universities. My husband continues to work remotely for Cray, a subsidiary of Hewlett Packard Enterprise located in the Twin Cities.
- Husband: Jeff
- Kids: Evelyn (10), Wyatt (6), and Lolo (4)
- Also in our home: My father-in-law, Ron, and his dog Reagan, and our dog, Norman.
- I am also on the board for the SB-L School Foundation and the Sergeant Bluff Community Foundation, serve as a United Way Community Impact volunteer, and am co-leader for the Pioneer Valley Clover Kids.
- I'm currently pursuing my Ph.D. at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. I earned my bachelor's from Drake University and my master's from the University of St. Thomas.
- I grew up in Burt, IA and graduated from Algona High School in Algona, IA.
- Fun facts: I've worked at Morningside for 2.5 years and never seen the football team lose. I enjoy fishing, reading, hiking, running, and my Peloton.
